

Randy Rutherford:

Randy Rutherford is a writer, humorist and solo performer who makes his home in the San Francisco Bay Area. He was a folksinger in Alaska during the 70s. After giving up music and performing because of a progressive hearing loss, he earned an MFA in Painting from California College of Arts and Crafts. He began to miss performing and returned to the stage in the early 90s. He has written two critically acclaimed autobiographical plays and is working on a third. "Arctic Tales" (working title) chronicles his days in Alaska as a hearing impaired folksinger who falls in love with his guitar teacher's girlfriend and gets attacked by a grizzly bear.
